Olivier lives with his Grand-Dad, who tells him fantastic stories every night. The day he first hears about the Pandora's Box, which brought all the evils of the world, he is as enchanted.

When he finds out that Hope is still locked in the Box, he decides to look for the Pandora's Box to free Hope and enable it to spread on the world.

Along with his grandfather, the grumpy professor Philémon Knut, the irresistible adventurer Jason Fearless, and the courageous journalist Helen Alceste, Olivier will go on a long journey across the wonderful world of Greek mythology. There, he will come across extraordinary individuals and will face terrifying dangers.

Will he be able to complete the expedition successfully?
Will he succeed in freeing Hope, that has been locked for so long?

The author
Isabelle FABULA
Paris

Since the day she was born, on a snowy day in a small village in Maine et Loire, Isabelle has two passions: singing and stories.

After her studies, she went to live in England before moving near Paris, where she spends a large part of her time writing stories mixing adventure, emotion and humor.

Knowing that Hope had remained at the bottom of the Pandora's Box always intrigued her, and so she decided to put an end to this sad situation. This is how the "Pandora's Box" project began, after a huge amount of research, several sleepless nights and lots of pleasure.

Isabelle FABULA has, obviously, other hobbies. In no particular order, she likes: nature, orange tea, cats, roller-skate, dance, and, more than anything else... chocolate-coated toffee.
